Stockholm Survey

Introduction

The work contained within this booklet documents in the form of a drawn survey a number of examples of buildings in Stockholm. We believe that surveying existing buildings helps develop a deeper understanding of their qualities, a useful corrective to the belief that it is possible to come up with entirely original solutions.

The arrangement of the facades of the case studies is also relevant, it is through the making of facades that the character of a city is formed and a sense of urban decorum established. The buildings contained in the following pages were firstly studied and carefully photographed as a portrait of their character and atmosphere.

They were then drawn accurately at the same scale, 1:100, with attention being given to the manner in which they exist as buildings today, with all the additions and adjustments that have occurred through history.

By making a survey of something we get to know it better as a subject. We were very happy to observe the manner in which these wonderful buildings were interpreted in the student's work and the lesson they hold disseminated.
